1. Skittles Littles (2024)

Candy lovers rejoiced when Skittles Littles Original received official kosher certification from the Orthodox Union in 2024. While some imported Skittles varieties had previously been kosher, this marked the first official certification in the U.S., making it a momentous occasion. An OU spokesperson confirmed that Skittles Littles Original, whether in bags or tubes, are kosher even without the OU symbol printed on the packaging. However, the absence of the OU symbol on these certified products raises significant questions about transparency and consumer trust. Why hasn't Skittles chosen to include the certification symbol, despite meeting all requirements? Regardless, the colorful, fruity candies are now a guilt-free treat for kosher consumers, adding a sweet burst of joy to every bite.

2. Tate's Tiny Chocolate Chip Cookies (2024)

Tate's Bake Shop charmed cookie fans in 2024 with the introduction of Tiny Tate's, a miniature version of their classic cookies. Available in chocolate chip and snickerdoodle flavors, these bite-sized treats come in resealable bags for snacking convenience. Their crisp, buttery texture makes them perfect for a quick indulgence or sharing at social gatherings. Alongside these, Tate's also launched full-sized snickerdoodle cookies and salted caramel chocolate chip varieties, expanding their already delectable lineup. Widely available at major retailers, these cookies are the ultimate combination of taste and portability for on-the-go lifestyles.

3. Unreal Chocolate Covered Pretzels & Almonds (2024)

Unreal Snacks continues to push the boundaries of healthy snacking with its latest offerings: chocolate-covered pretzels and almonds. Debuting in March 2024, these treats cater to various dietary needs, being grain-free, gluten-free, and certified vegan. The milk and dark chocolate pretzels deliver a satisfying crunch, while the dark chocolate and dark chocolate coconut almonds are a creamy, nutty delight. Perfect for guilt-free indulgence, these snacks are available online and at Whole Foods, offering a sweet escape for chocolate lovers who want to keep it kosher and health-conscious.

4. Yasso Frozen Fruit Bars (2024)

Yasso, known for its creamy frozen Greek yogurt, took a refreshing turn in 2024 with the launch of three frozen fruit bar flavors. Strawberry Chocolate Crunch, Strawberries & Cream, and Creamy Mango Bars deliver a delightful balance of fruity sweetness and indulgent textures. Made with real fruit, these bars are a healthier dessert option that doesn't compromise on flavor. Whether you're cooling down on a summer day or enjoying a light treat after dinner, Yasso's fruit bars are a vibrant addition to any kosher freezer.

5. Dove Milk Chocolate Tiramisu Promises (2024)

Dove Chocolate elevated its Promises line in 2024 with a luxurious twist: Milk Chocolate Tiramisu Caramel Promises. These decadent morsels feature a tiramisu-flavored caramel center, combining rich coffee, creamy chocolate, and luscious caramel in perfect harmony. Packaged in stand-up pouches, they're ideal for gifting or savoring one piece at a time. Dove's commitment to crafting indulgent, high-quality treats shines through in this kosher-certified offering, bringing a taste of Italy to your candy bowl.

6. Impossible Burger (Certified in 2018)

Though certified kosher in 2018, the Impossible Burger continues to make waves as a trailblazer in plant-based eating. Its meaty texture and savory flavor have won over vegetarians, vegans, and even meat lovers. Perfect for grilling, sautéing, or crumbling into dishes, it's a versatile option for creating classic comfort foods with a modern twist. Certified by the OU, this burger aligns with kosher dietary laws while catering to environmentally conscious eaters. Whether served as a burger or as part of a creative dish, the Impossible Burger remains a groundbreaking choice in kosher-friendly dining.

7. Tic Tac Breath Mints (Certified in 2018)

Tic Tac, the iconic breath mint brand, became officially kosher-certified in 2018, delighting fans of the tiny treats. With their signature snap-open containers, these mints bring freshness in a portable and playful package. Available in classic flavors like Freshmint and Orange, as well as limited-edition varieties, Tic Tacs are perfect for keeping in your pocket or bag. Their small size and big flavor make them an ideal companion for everyday life. As a kosher-certified product, they're a staple that's as practical as it is refreshing.

8. Gatorade (2010)

In 2010, Gatorade made history by announcing that several of its products had been certified kosher by the Orthodox Union. This milestone brought an iconic sports drink into the kosher market, ensuring athletes and fitness enthusiasts could hydrate with confidence. Known for replenishing electrolytes and fueling performance, Gatorade continues to be a trusted name in sports nutrition. Its kosher-certified options cater to a wide audience, blending practicality with a commitment to dietary inclusivity. Whether on the field or at the gym, Gatorade's kosher line has become a staple for active lifestyles.

10. Blue Diamond Almonds (2019)

In 2019, Blue Diamond Almonds entered the kosher market, offering its beloved almonds with certification to meet kosher dietary standards. From lightly salted and roasted varieties to bold flavors like Wasabi & Soy Sauce, their almond snacks cater to every palate. Known for their health benefits, almonds are a great source of protein, healthy fats, and energy, making these snacks perfect for on-the-go munching. Blue Diamond's kosher-certified line ensures that their products maintain the highest quality while adhering to dietary requirements. Whether snacking solo or sharing with friends, Blue Diamond Almonds are a delicious and nutritious choice.

11. Reese's Baking Mixes (2024)

Reese's, synonymous with the perfect pairing of peanut butter and chocolate, entered the baking aisle in 2024 with three irresistible mixes. The Reese's Lava Cake Mix, Peanut Butter Muffin Mix, and No-Bake Bars Mix bring the brand's signature flavors into your kitchen. Whether you're whipping up a decadent dessert or a quick snack, these mixes deliver the unmistakable Reese's taste with minimal effort. With two permanent additions and a limited-time lava cake offering, these kosher-certified mixes are a must-try for fans of sweet, peanut butter-infused creations.

12. Dave's Killer Bread Rock 'N' Rolls (2024)

Known for its organic and wholesome breads, Dave's Killer Bread introduced its first-ever nationally available rolls in 2024: Rock 'N' Rolls. These soft, flavorful rolls are USDA organic, non-GMO, and free from artificial ingredients, making them a standout choice for health-conscious consumers. Perfect for sandwiches, burgers, or dinner rolls, they bring a hearty, nutritious twist to any meal. With their signature bold flavors, Dave's Killer Bread continues to rock the bread aisle while staying true to its kosher-friendly roots.

9. Bob's Red Mill (2017)

Bob's Red Mill Natural Foods, an employee-owned company, has been a pioneer in nutritious, organic, and gluten-free products since its founding. Achieving kosher certification in 2017, the brand expanded its accessibility to those adhering to kosher dietary laws. Their diverse product line includes stone-ground whole grain flours, cereals, baking mixes, seeds, and more, making it a favorite among health-conscious consumers. With a mission to promote "whole grains for every meal of the day," Bob's Red Mill is as much about quality as it is about community. Their products, available in grocery stores nationwide, bring a wholesome touch to every kitchen.
